

Plays by Barbara and Carlton Molette

- ADA'S HUSBAND PASSED– Clarence passed away. Conflict over his burial requires Ada, his wife of thirty years and their two grown children to address the question: Was Clarence a Black man who passed for White or a White man who passed for Black? One set, 60 minutes, 2 women, 3 men.
- BOOJI– A Black lawyer, to the dismay of his friends and colleagues, mentors a group of young “Black revolutionaries” while one member uses the group to conceal criminal activity. Unit set, 70 minutes, 8 women, 10 men.
- DOCTOR B.S. BLACK: A Farcical Musical– Also a non-musical. Begonia punishes her husband for his womanizing by convincing naive locals that he can work amazing cures, but only if he is beaten first. Con artist B.S. “confesses” he is a doctor and connives to conceal his inability to actually cure anyone. One set, 120 minutes. 4 men, 4 women.
- FORTUNES OF THE MOOR– Shakespeare’s Othello ends as Desdemona’s relatives plan to “...seize upon the fortunes of the Moor...” Fortunes of the Moor supposes Desdemona, disowned by her father, takes refuge at a convent and gives birth to a son while Othello commands a Venetian victory in Cyprus. Set in Othello’s village, an African griot tells of Othello’s family traveling to Venice to find Othello’s son while Desdemona’s kin connive to claim Othello’s fortune. Unit set, 100 minutes, 6 men, 5 women (with doubling– 4 men, 4 women).
- LEGACY: A Comedy of Southern Manners– Amanda Overton, guardian of the local social hierarchy, has never met Justine, her sister’s daughter, who was born and raised in Paris. Amanda’s sister left her southern nest to attend Radcliffe, fell in love and eloped to Paris with a Harvard man. Amanda plans to introduce her legacy to “Southern society.” When Justine arrives, Amanda discovers she is Black. Unit set, 120 minutes, 4 women, 1 man.
- NOAH'S ARK– Published in Center Stage, edited by Eileen Ostrow, University of Illinois Press. A university professor’s son is running a rogue radio station and the government considers him a terrorist. One set, 120 minutes, 4 women, 3 men.
- OUR SHORT STAY– Prudence Crandall unleashes a firestorm of bigotry in 1833 Connecticut, when she lets a “Colored girl” enroll in her Academy. After organized intimidation causes Crandall to close her school and reopen as an academy for “young ladies and little misses of color,” opposition grows more widespread and violent. Based on the same actual events as PRUDENCE, can be performed in a classroom space, and focuses more on the students. Unit set, 40 minutes, 2 women, 1 man (all play several characters).
- PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER– Historically Black Pemberton State University’s chronic financial stress motivates various factions to demand the newly appointed President’s removal as television journalist Josie Jenkins strains her romantic relationship with Pemberton’s Academic Vice President by chronicling the campus turmoil. Unit set, 90 minutes, 4 men, 2 women.
- PRUDENCE– This full length play, intended for full theatrical production, is based on the same actual events as OUR SHORT STAY (See above.) and focuses more on Prudence Crandall. Unit set, 110 minutes, 4 women, 2 men, (most play several characters).
- ROSALEE PRITCHETT– Black women play bridge, discuss aspirations and express relief that the National Guard is “keeping ghetto Blacks from looting and rioting.” Then, one of them is raped. Unit set, 60 minutes, 5 women, 4 men. Please contact Dramatists Play Service for performance rights.

AFROCENTRIC THEATRE provides a framework for interpreting, analyzing, and evaluating theatre arts based in Afrocentric culture and values. Plays, as well as film and video dramas, are not Afrocentric simply because they are by Black playwrights, or have Black characters, or address Black themes or issues. Instead, plays, film and video dramas, are Afrocentric when they embrace and disseminate Afrocentric culture and values.
